Hi There.

A first-time gift from a new donor can be the start of a long-term relationship that grows over time and can even blossom into new relationships with that donor’s friends, family, and colleagues. Or, like many first-time gifts, that donor could give once and immediately turn their attention elsewhere.

The key to ensuring that the first gift is just one of many is to communicate to your donors just how wonderful they are, along with how much their gift will impact your mission. Not just once, but multiple times after they give for the first time. This series of touchpoints will serve as your organization’s New Donor Welcome Series.

Your New Donor Welcome Series should include various types of engagement, from an immediate and heartfelt thank you to invitations to upcoming events. That’s why this guide includes templates that empower you to design your New Donor Welcome Series so donors can stay connected with your organization in various ways.

Remember, there’s so much you can share with new donors about your mission and the amazing impact you’re having in the world. And you should communicate these things. That’s why donors give to you, after all! But no matter the occasion, always take care to engage your donors in a way that makes them feel good about themselves because they support your mission. We hope these templates can help you do just that.

The Thank You: Make Your Best First Impression

“Thank You” is the most important message in the nonprofit world. The first email a new donor receives should always be a personal and meaningful thank you message. According to GuideStar, a donor who is thanked within 48 hours of giving is 4 times more likely to give again. That’s why it’s critical to invest in an email marketing tool that integrates with your donor management software so personalization and speedy delivery of thank yous are seamless and efficient.

If you’re in the market for these kinds of tools and integrations or looking to upgrade, consider registering for a demo of DonorPerfect fundraising software, a top-rated CRM that’s integrated with Constant Contact email marketing.

In addition to personalizing donor thank-yous with their name, you should also segment this first email by how the donor gave to your organization. For example, a donor who gave their first gift at your event should be thanked differently than a new donor who joined your monthly giving program. Creating separate emails for different donor scenarios can seem like a heavy lift, but we’ve made it easier for you by providing four kinds of thank-you templates below.

While some organizations have found success in including asks in their thank you emails, others fear that treating new donors like an ATM immediately after they gave their first gift won’t make for a good first impression. The thank-you email templates below do not include an immediate ask, but you can easily add one into the content.

Remember that what you do is entirely up to you, but no matter how you choose to make these templates your own, be sure to check out your email campaign’s success so you can continuously update its content in a way that best engages and retains your donors.

Once you’ve created these emails, check out page 38 to learn about email segmentation and best practices to ensure you’re sending the right messages to the right people every time you engage.

The Friend Request: Offer Effortless Ways to Stay Engaged via Social Media

The easiest way for donors to keep tabs on all of your organization’s fundraisers, impact stories, and events they care about is by connecting with your nonprofit on social media. Once a new donor becomes a social media follower, your organization can meet them where they are daily with photos and updates that make them feel connected to you.

The Invitation: Share About Volunteer Opportunities + Upcoming Events

Gaining valuable face time with new donors is a great way to start off your relationship. This newsletter-style email is designed to introduce your donors to the gatherings that turn first gifts into new friendships.

To ease the burden of event registration and volunteer management, opt for an online forms solution that integrates with your fundraising CRM and offers an unlimited amount of forms. This will enable you to use separate registration forms that you can style to match your event and add the specific details your donors will want to know.
We’d Love It If You’d Join Us!

Hi Eleanor,

Give the Updates That Matter More Than Anything

One of the top reasons donors stop giving after their first gift is because after they gave, they had no update regarding the impact of their gift. Incorporating a touch base email that shows and tells the good that came of a donor’s generosity will inspire them to stay tuned to what’s ahead and even invest in your future initiatives.

Just like your initial thank-you email, your update email should tie back to the donor’s specific journey. For example, if your donor gave their first gift at an event, your update email should talk about the impact created by the funds raised at the event they attended.

Because donors will feel so good about seeing the outcome of their generosity, your impact emails offer the perfect opportunity to ask for another gift. Link to your donation form in the text or add a button.

To learn more about email segmentation, skip to page 38. To begin crafting your tailored update emails, copy and paste the templates below.

Treat Donors Like The Stakeholders They Are

Giving new donors a seat at the table allows them to feel connected to your organization in the same way that a stakeholder is invested in the success of their company. After they’ve had time to become acclimated with your mission and the unique ways you’re working toward it, have a purposeful check-in with your new donors and ask them about topics that will garner their interest.

Remember, your donors are busy, so keep your survey short and sweet. Not sure what to ask? We’ve provided sample questions you can choose from in this link.

Hi Wendy,

Since you’re a valued stakeholder in our community, we want to make sure you know what’s ahead so you can continue to influence our mission in a positive way. Here are some of the projects and events ahead at Paws + Claws Animal Rescue.

Operation: Second Chance
This fall, Paws + Claws has committed to saving 25 cats and dogs from euthanization by taking these pets into our shelter and training, grooming, and creating eye-catching listings for them to facilitate adoptions in and beyond our area. We’d be so grateful if you’d support Operation: Second Chance by donating or spreading the word to your network on social media.

Sunday Walks in the Boro
We’ll be posting up around town on Sundays in September so our adoptable dogs can get some serious face time with potential forever families. We expect to get lots of interest, so sign up to be a boro walker ASAP!

Shop for Good Fall Fundraiser at Vinyl Daze Records
Vinyl Daze Record Store is hosting a Shop for Good event to benefit Paws + Claws on October 10, 2020. We want to clue you in ahead of time so you’ll know where to go for the music lover on your holiday shopping list. Keep tabs on this special event on Facebook!

When to Send: Your New Donor Welcome Series Timeline

If you follow the sequence and send times suggested below, you’ll give new donors some breathing room between asks, while introducing them to your buzzing social media feeds, special volunteer opportunities, and the lively culture surrounding your mission that makes your community unique.

Best of all, this schedule may even allow enough time to elapse so that your impact update email contains photos or a video that directly show what their first gift made possible.

Email #1. The Thank You
Send Time: 48 hours or less after their first gift

Email #2. The Social Media Invitation
Send Time: 1-2 weeks after their first gift

Email #3. The Events + Volunteer Opportunities Newsletter
Send Time: 2-3 weeks after their first gift

Email #4. The Impact Update
Send Time: 3-4 weeks after their first gift

Email #5. The Donor Survey
Send Time: 4-5 weeks after their first gift

Email #6. The “What’s Ahead” Preview
Send Time: 5-6 weeks after their first gift

How to Segment Your New Donor Welcome Emails

By adopting segmentation as a pillar of your email strategy, your organization’s communications will be much more effective.

Segmentation is all about creating groups from your donor community and crafting messages that best pertain to them. You’ll notice in the targeted thank-you emails on pages 3-10 that there are different ways you should acknowledge a monthly gift and a gift made at an event if you want your donor emails to feel truly personal.

To see how segmentation works in an email marketing tool, check out this helpful article from Constant Contact.

Like what you see? The fundraising experts at DonorPerfect partner with the email gurus at Constant Contact to continuously enhance and deliver easy-to-use features that connect your donor database with your email marketing application. This pairing results in more targeted communications, better insights on email performance, and ultimately, more meaningful touchpoints throughout the donor journey. 3 Ways to Keep Your New Donor Welcome Series Fresh

#1. Set calendar reminders to update content that changes over time.

With all that's going on at your organization, it's important to set up safeguards to ensure that your content doesn't go stale. Emails that contain timely and relevant information like your events and volunteer opportunities newsletter should be updated to reflect the latest and greatest invitations that your donors can respond to.

To ensure your new donor welcome series always delivers up-to-date information, set a calendar reminder a week before content in an email will expire so you'll have plenty of time to replace that content with something new.

#2. Recruit digital-savvy students to enhance your high-touch campaigns.

Many students at local colleges would appreciate the opportunity to volunteer, intern, or gain employment through your organization. Post job opportunities for part-time web or graphic designers and writers who can lend their skills and education to elevating your campaigns.

#3. Swap out subject lines and content that aren't converting.

An effective email marketing tool makes it easy to analyze your new donor welcome series so you can continuously tweak it to best engage your supporters. Constant Contact's split testing tool makes it super simple to test subject lines. Once you've created your email campaign, click the A/B Test button and add two options as your variables.

Every month (or quarter if you don't have time to look at your metrics monthly), check to see which subject lines and content are performing best. Once you've gathered some positive takeaways, leverage them to update underperforming emails so they garner the same or greater levels of engagement.
